

Broadband For Development A CODERS4AFRICA Perspective

GLOBAL FORUM 2014 SHAPING THE FUTURE

PRESENTED BY CODERS4AFRICA

@Coders4Africa

Broadband for Development

- Regional and state leaders across the Africa increasingly recognize that the Internet is the indispensable infrastructure of our age. To ensure a high quality of life and a globally competitive future for all citizen, these broadband champions need more advocates to join their ranks.
- Broadband connectivity is among the important tools for economic development that planners and policy makers must consider when they ponder the potential of "secondary drivers " for economic development.

Broadband challenges

- Reliable power
- Reliable connectivity
- Fixed broadband costs about 30% of average income
- Fewer than 10% of fixed broadband subscriptions offer speeds of at least 2Mb/s
- Partnership between network providers and content providers
- More IXPs (Internet Exchange Point)
- Take advantage of Cloud computing

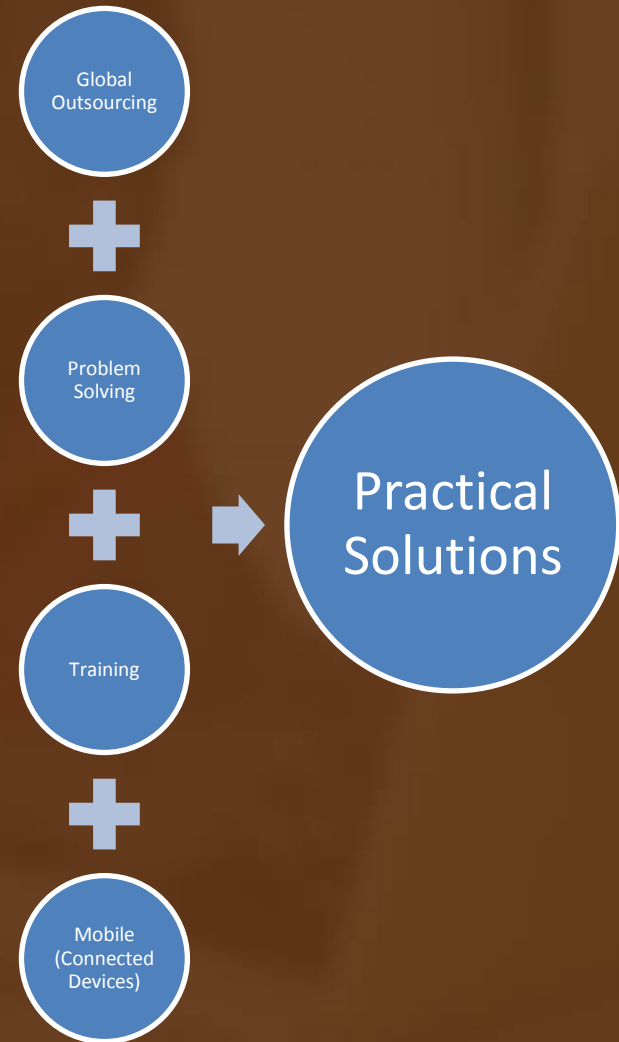

Case Liquid Telecom

- Launched high speed fiber linking Zimbabwe to South Africa, Zambia and the rest of the world in 2011
- More than 8000 kms of fiber optic cable running live traffic
- Have national and international backhaul able to support up to 100Gbps in some instances (First in Africa)
- Started rolling Fiber to the home in 2012
- Licensed in 11 African Countries
- Building one network across multiple bordering countries

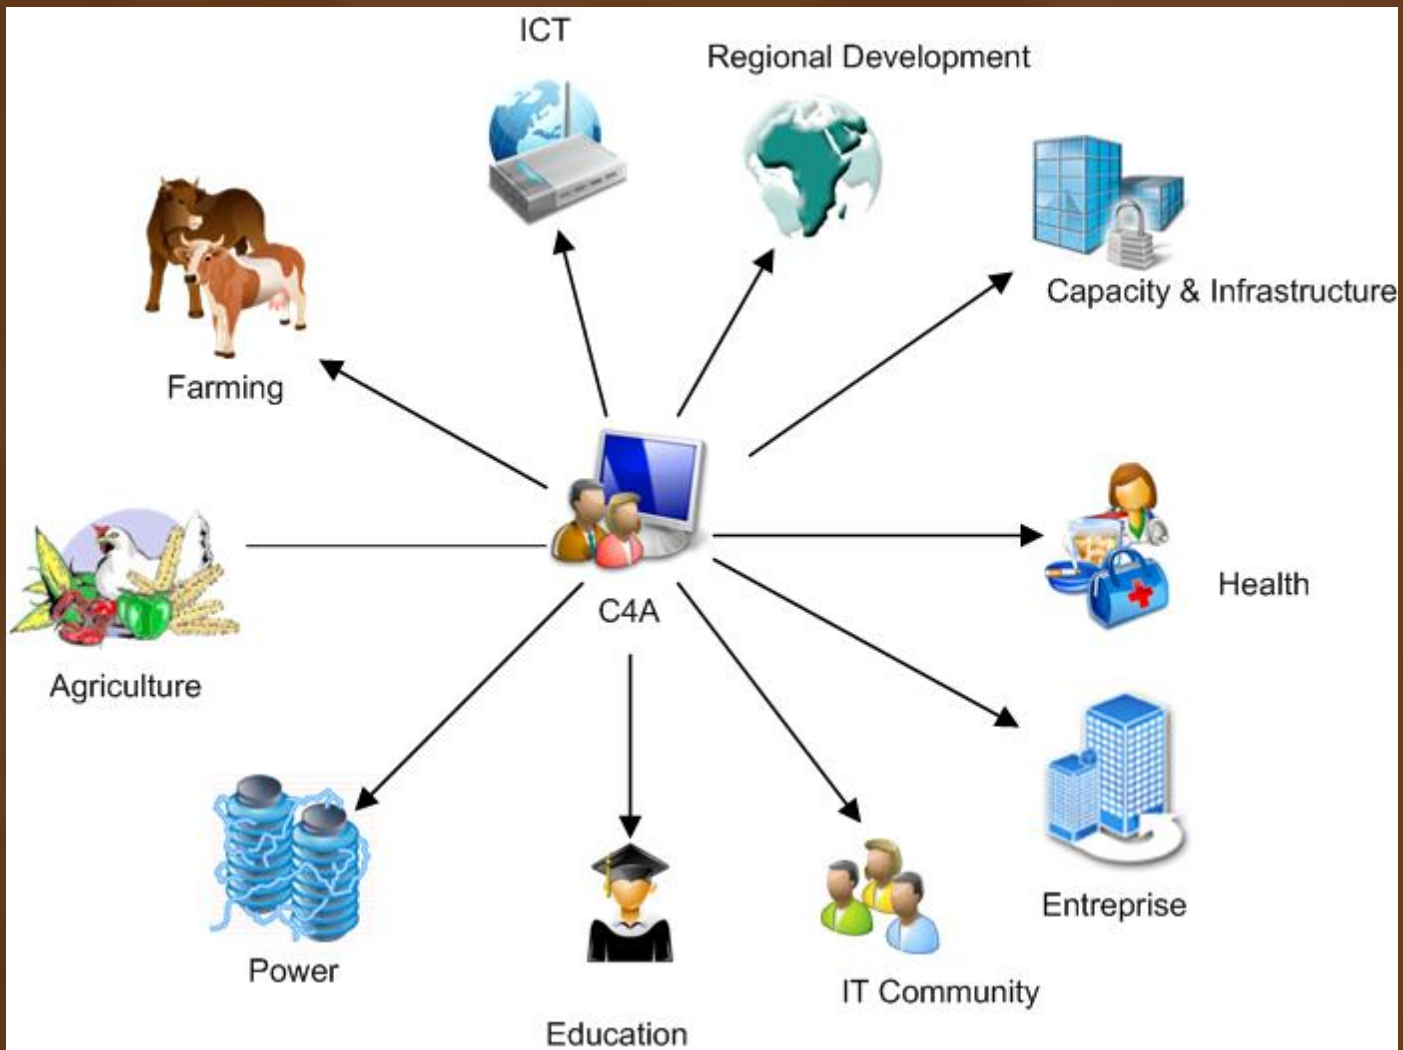

Coders4Africa

- A Software development firm that trains, hires and manages technology teams in Africa. We have distinct training programs, outsourced development programs and foundry programs to nourish and grow internal ideas.
